Note: Both NAREE Active member working journalists and non-member working journalists are eligible to apply. NAREE members must be active members in good standing. There is no fee for NAREE active members who have paid their 2020 dues in full. Journalist non-members must pay a $75 application fee, which can be applied to annual membership dues.

NAREE dues are not tax deductible as a charitable contribution for federal tax purposes, but may be deducted as a business expense. NAREE is a non-profit trade organization. IRS registration is #51-1036401.

WHO CAN APPLY:

The NAREE Bivins professional development fellowship was created for independent journalists working for the news division of independent news outlets.

• Bona fide digital, print and broadcast journalists — freelance or staff writers, reporters, editors, columnists and broadcast producers — covering residential and commercial real estate, mortgage and finance, the business of real estate, home and urban design, luxury, green building, architecture, housing policy among other topics for bona fide news outlets.

• NAREE defines bona fide news outlets as those independent of sponsoring organizations/ advertising control, not affiliated with trade associations, lobby groups, PR firms, real estate brokerage companies or any companies in the broad field of real estate — building companies, developers, architects, etc. or governmental entities.

NAREE UNIVERSITY

The goal of NAREE's Annual Bivins Fellowship is to provide travel stipends to NAREE's Annual Conference to enhance the profession of real estate journalism. NAREE University sessions at the Annual Conference coupled with real estate press conferences and panels offer journalists — both new to the real estate beat and veterans — a chance to enhance skills and broaden the spectrum of industry sources. It is named for NAREE past president and veteran award-winning journalist, Ralph Bivins for his devotion to the group.

JUDGING:

Fellowship applications may be judged by the faculty of an accredited university's journalism department.

DEADLINE:

Copies of the online entry form from naree.org are acceptable and can be scanned and emailed to nareeprograms@gmail.com by October 21, 2020.
